

Give The Stomach A Chance To Work

We can't expect the stomach to act normally if the natural avenues of elimination are blocked so it cannot dispose of its refuse. When the bowels are constipated the stomach is called upon for work beyond its capacity and the result is bloating, belching, headache, and discomfort generally, and, unless the condition is promptly relieved, serious illness.

An effective remedy for constipation is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that acts on the bowels in a gentle, natural manner, without griping or other pain or discomfort, affording speedy relief. Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your druggist and have it in the house when you need it; it costs only fifty cents and is the ideal family remedy, mild enough for children and old people, yet sufficiently powerful for the strongest constitution. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. E. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

DAYS OF MONARCHY AND REPUBLIC RECALLED WITH DEATH OF QUEEN

pointment and endorse the action taken and report made by the said committee of safety; and we do hereby further empower such committee to further consider the situation and further devise such ways and means as may be necessary to secure the permanent maintenance of law and order, and the protection of life, liberty and property in Hawaii.

CRUISER BOSTON LANDS MARINES

At 5 o'clock the same afternoon the United States ship Boston, Capt. Wiltse, landed 300 men, each with two belts of cartridges and rifle. Marines were sent to the United States legation in Nuuanu street, and sailors with two Gatling guns to a position in front of J. A. Hopper's residence, King street (where the Public Library now stands), across Likiepke street from the palace grounds. Thence the bluejackets were later taken to J. B. Atherton's, corner of King and Alapai streets, and finally to Arion Hall, behind the Opera House, opposite the palace, where they camped for the night.

An episode in the preparations for armed revolt occurred on Tuesday afternoon, January 17, which precipitated matters. At 2:30 o'clock three native policemen attempted to stop a wagon being driven up Fort street with arms in charge of Edwin Benner and John Good, when Good shot and wounded one of them. The wagon went its way, followed by a policeman in a hack.

CITIZENS ARM

Citizens, the alarm having been given, hurried to the old Honolulu Rifles armory where they were organized into companies, armed and marched to the government building. Thither but unarmed went also the committee of public safety and obtained possession of the building from the chief clerk of the interior department, none of the ministers being there. A small squad detailed to hold the building for the queen did nothing, its commander having vainly appealed to the authorities to send him arms and men.

Henry E. Cooper, chairman of the committee of safety, surrounded by his colleagues, in front of the main entrance, read the proclamation, which after a preamble reciting the history of the monarchy and its conflicts with the principles of constitutional government in recent times in the name of "citizens and residents."

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT WAS THEN SET UP

The Hawaiian monarchy and system of government is hereby abolished.

"2. A provisional government for the control and management of public affairs and the protection of the public peace is hereby established to exist until terms of union with the United States of America have been negotiated and agreed upon."

NEW ORGANIZATION

Section 3 created an executive council consisting of S. B. Dole, president and chairman of such council, as well as administrator of the department of foreign affairs; J. A. King, to administer department of interior; P. C. Jones, department of finance, and W. O. Smith, department of attorney-general. It also created an advisory council of 14 members, being S. M. Damon, L. A. Thurston, J. Emmelhuth, J. A. McCandless, F. W. McCleskey, W. R. Castle, W. C. Wilder, A. Brown, J. F. Morgan, H. Waterhouse, E. D. Tenney, P. Wilhelm, W. G. Ashley and C. Bolte, such council having general legislative authority.

Section 4 requested officers of the existing government to continue to exercise their functions with the exception of Queen Liliuokalani, Charles B. Wilson, marshal; Samuel Parker, minister of foreign affairs; W. H. Cornwell, minister of finance; John P. Colburn, minister of the interior, and Arthur P. Peterson, attorney-general, who were removed from office.

Section 5 read: "All Hawaiian laws and constitutional principles not inconsistent herewith shall continue in force until further order of the executive and advisory councils."

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY

The committee of safety consisted of Henry E. Cooper, Andrew Brown, John Emmelhuth, Ed. Suhr, W. C. Wilder, Wm. O. Smith, Wm. R. Castle, Theodore F. Lansing, C. Bolte, Henry Waterhouse, F. W. McCleskey, Lorin A. Thurston and J. A. McCandless.

A demand was forthwith made on the ministers to surrender all government functions and property to the provisional government, and on their advice the queen surrendered her sovereignty under protest, saying: "I yield to the superior force of the United States of America, whose minister plenipotentiary, His Excellency John L. Stevens, has caused United States troops to be landed at Honolulu and declared that he would support the said provisional government."

U. S. MINISTER RECOGNIZES THE NEW GOVERNMENT

Minister Stevens immediately recognized the provisional government, which governed the islands until July 4, 1894, when, negotiations for annexation having come to naught, the Republic of Hawaii was proclaimed under a constitution framed by an elected convention, for which all who had taken the oath of allegiance to the P. G. voted. Meantime the new rulers had taken possession of the palace for government offices, the late queen retiring to her private mansion, Washington Place, having also a seaside residence at Waikiki.

CLEVELAND TAKES UP QUEEN'S PROTEST

Her protest against dethronement was taken up seriously by President

Cleveland's administration, with the result that, upon a report made by Faranout Minister Blount after an investigation held by him in Honolulu, his first act having been to remove the protectorate established by Minister Stevens, the secretary of state, J. Q. Gresham, issued instructions to Minister Willis, who succeeded Blount, to restore Queen Liliuokalani to the throne. Willis dictated to her majesty the condition of full amnesty to her enemies, which the queen rejected and in consequence the minister asked his government for further instructions, the provisional government in the meantime having made ostentatious preparations to oppose restoration by a "show of force" against any United States troops that might be employed to carry it out. Cleveland, on the strength of the minister's representations, abandoned all further action on behalf of the deposed queen.

REPUBLIC OF HAWAII IS ESTABLISHED

Efforts to bring about annexation to the United States having failed, the provisional government called a constitutional convention, the franchise being exercised only by those who had taken the oath of allegiance, the outcome of which was the Republic of Hawaii inaugurated July 4, 1894. As a war measure, during the Spanish-American conflict, the United States Congress passed a resolution of annexation which was signed by President McKinley on July 7, 1898. The flag was raised at Honolulu in August following, and the Territory of Hawaii was created in 1900.

UPRISING OF 1895

Liliuokalani passed an uneventful life at Washington Place, surrounded by steadfast retainers, until January, 1895, when an uprising to restore her to the throne took place. Arms had been smuggled, the way of an outlying islet, to the suburbs of Honolulu, and while the government of the republic was trying to get a line on the conspiracy, suddenly, on the night of the fifth (Sunday) a collision occurred between some revolutionists and a posse of police and citizens which attempted to raid premises at Waikiki where they had their rendezvous. The posse was repulsed—Charles Carter, a rising young lawyer, being fatally wounded—but martial law was promptly declared and the revolutionists, who had taken to the hills, were suppressed and their leaders all arrested after about ten days of skirmishing and dodging. In the meantime many suspected abettors of the revolt were apprehended, including the queen, under whose house a collection of more or less obsolete firearms and crude bombs of coconut shells had been seized. Among others who was tried by court-martial and, upon conviction of conspiracy, treason, and sedition, was sentenced to pay a fine of $5000 and be imprisoned at hard labor for five years. She was confined in a second story suite of her former palace for several months, before receiving a pardon from President Dole.

LIFE AFTER RELEASE

After her release Liliuokalani paid several visits to the United States, living most of the time in Washington. She submitted a claim of $250,000 to the U. S. government on account of the loss of the crown lands, as she alleged, through the unlawful action of American troops in aiding to dethrone her. These lands were inalienable under the monarchy, their revenues being set apart for "maintenance of the royal state and dignity." For some time they had been managed by a commission. The former sovereign spent much money in retaining lawyers to press her claim, but received no satisfaction in return. The territorial legislature bestowed a permanent settlement of $1000 a month upon Liliuokalani, which with her private estate has enabled her to maintain the dignity of a real queen. This pension was later increased to $1250 a month, at which figure it remained to the time of her death.

PASSED QUIETLY INTO AGE

Ever since her acceptance of the situation under the American flag, she has lived in state at Washington Place, keeping up the semblance of a royal court. Distinguished visitors have been glad to be presented to her majesty, and few strangers with respectable credentials have been refused informal audience of her when requested. Her birthday receptions have been thrown open to the community at large, residents and sojourners crowding to pay their respects to her. She has been the central figure at scores of public and semi-public functions. With all traces of resentment toward her dethronement obliterated, her demeanor sweetened as the shadows of age gathered around her. She had a pleasant word for everybody that met her, and none left her presence without feeling that they had paid court to a queen indeed.

Circuit Judge Ashford's trial jury-men have been excused until further notice.

UNITE FOR BUSINESS

"We should put an emphasis on the things that unite, rather than the things that separate."—Francis H. Sisson.

The merchant of ability endeavors to cooperate with the customer for service.

To that end he goes to the customer through a medium that reaches the home, and tells what he has.
